

In today's connected world, customers are in the driver's seat. Empowered by technology and armed with more information than ever before, the average customer completes as much as 70% of the buying journey without directly interacting with sales teams¹. On top of that, when customers do engage with reps, they expect a smarter sales experience—one that is personalized, instant, and always on.

Facing increasing customer demands, sales teams must rise to the occasion. In fact, 79% of business buyers say it is absolutely critical or very important to interact with a salesperson who is a trusted advisor², not someone pushing products and services.

Reps must understand and anticipate their customers' unique needs and preferences, like personal consultants. But if reps are spending all of their time sifting through customer data and doing manual tasks, like hunting for leads, researching accounts, and calling wrong numbers, they're not able to take the time to become consultative sellers.

There's good news: Sales Cloud makes it easy for sales teams to connect with customers and deliver a seamless and efficient experience along every step of the sales process, from lead nurturing campaigns to intuitive deal tracking. The result: You engage with customers earlier and close more deals, faster than ever before.

“Salesforce makes us smarter – and smarter means better for our customers.”

Christian Stuppy, Head of Technology, Merck

THE WORLD'S #1 SALES PLATFORM

Because Sales Cloud is built in the cloud, all of your customer information is in one place and available anytime, from any device. Salesforce pioneered the concept of cloud computing back in 1999, eliminating the risk and expense associated with traditional software and on-premise servers—and we haven't looked back since. Sales Cloud does away with the hidden costs and drawn-out implementations of traditional customer relationship management (CRM) software. Today, it's the trusted sales app for more than 150,000 customers around the world.

Sales Cloud continues to pull ahead of the competition by embracing technologies that lead to customer success, from mobile to artificial intelligence to smarter collaboration. Best of all, Sales Cloud sits on the secured and trusted Salesforce platform, so you can scale with confidence and customize Sales Cloud to fit your business, not the other way around.
